End-to-end models made rapid progress in recent years.

We identify two hidden biases crucial for their success.

1. End-to-end driving models implicitly rely on maps to recover from steering errors.

2. The waypoint representation improves driving by interpolating between multi-modal futures.

We develop TransFuser++ using these insights.

TransFuser++ achieves state-of-the-art results.